Lost Her Cable and Anchor-How the Luckenback Had to Abandon Hes Tow-Dereliet Near Kitty Hawk Supposed to Be Mathilda-Lots of

The heavy northeaster still has this section in its grip, and news of the havoc wrought by it at sea and along the coast is now coming in. In this city again yesterday all the low-lying streets were flooded by high tides, and the rain poured down as it had not done before in months. Wires are prostrated in all directions, and Charles Davies was shocked into insensibility by a local telephone.

Down the coast the velocity of the gale has, of course, been terrific, but the new light ship on Diamond Shoals, off Cape Hatteras, has held her anchors through the blast. She is slighly south-

ROUGH EXPERIENCE.

All arriving vessels report thrilling experiences with the storm. The schooner Helen H. Benedict, Captain Brockitt, bound from Boston to Baitimore, slight, put into this port after an exciting experience in sight of land. The storm struck her while she was just off Cape Henry and she was compelled to anchor to prevent being driven ashore. She rode out the seas in safety, however, but yesterday morning when she attempted to raise her anchor, the windlass broke and thirty fathoms of chain and the anchor were abandoned. vindlass broke and thirty fathoms of chain and the anchor were abandoned.

WRECK OF THE MATHILDA.

The tug Walter A. Luckenbach, Captain Willen, which left Key West about ten days ago for New York, with the disabled Norwegian ship Mathilda in tow, arrived here yesterday afternoon, having abandoned the ship about fifty miles southeast of Cape Henry. In the storm of Sunday the Mathilda weakened. Her stern post gave way, and her rudder was lost. The planks in her sides and decks began to bulge, and she was rapidly breaking to peccs. Without rudder, and in her condition, it was impossible for the Luckenbach to hold her on the course, and the only thing to do was to abandon her. The crew of the ill-fated vessel were saved by means of ropes. These were shot over the ship, and one by one the men tied them to their bodies and jumped overboard, being hauled through the heavy seas to the tug. The whole crew of seven were saved in this way, and were brought to Norfolk. It is thought that the Mathilda will be a total loss. She was recently purchased by Mr. L. Luckenbach, of New York, after she had been partially wrecked on Tortuges Island. She was loaded with lumber.

SHOCKED BY A TELEPHONE.

Mr. Charles Davies, proprieter of Davies' bakery, No. 73 Brewer street, had a narrow escape from death at his place of business. He was about to use his 'phone of the Southern States circuit, but when he touched the button preparatory to calling he received a shock that kenceked him into insensibility for a few seconds. The accident was due to contact between the telephone wire and a live electric wire. Mr. Davies reported the matter at the exchange, and he also thinks the electric light people should have some system of knowing when their wires become crossed, so that the current could be cut off.

The Southern States people say that akthough they have already taken all precautions advised by electrical ex-perts, they will at once install fuse proectors at every 'phone.

of which 1.99 or nearly two inches was precipitated between 8p. m. Monday and 8 o'clock last oight. This brings the total rainfall for the month up to 7.54 inches, some four inches above normal. The disturbance was central last night off Hatteras and moving slowly out to sea. The barometer in this city rose one-tenth of an inch yesterday and was rising at Hatteras last night, indicating that the storm is receeding. Throughout the night, however, the rainfall continued heavy and steady. There is now more than sixteen inches depth in the
